El pollo loco nachos discontinued

When you are craving Mexican food on the go, nothing can compete with El Pollo Loco. This SoCal staple was founded by Juan Francisco Ochoa in Mexico in 1975, and opened in Los Angeles, California five years later. Within a year, the LA location racked up $2 million in sales, and the rest is history (via Thrillist). This Southwestern chain is known for their signature Sinaloa-style marinated grilled chicken. This heavenly chicken is marinated with a special mix of garlic, citrus, and spices, and the recipe is both a well-kept secret and impossible to recreate at home (via The Daily Meal). Known for its fresh food and diverse vegetarian options, El Pollo Loco is not like other fast food chains. In 1995, they even held the world record for the largest burrito in the world — take that, Chipotle! There are so many delicious options on the El Pollo Loco menu, from their stacked burritos to that yummy chicken. But if you're a diehard fan of this regional fast food chain, you're in luck! According to Brand Eating, El Pollo Loco just debuted new loaded taquito nachos on their menu, and you won't want to miss out on this limited time deal. Officially called Double Crunch Taquito Nachos, this all-new menu item features "fresh, hand-salted tortilla chips topped with four delicious handmade chicken taquitos, freshly chopped chicken breast, creamy queso blanco, handmade pico de gallo and El Pollo Loco's famous creamy cilantro dressing" (via QSR Magazine). Drooling yet? If you didn't think it could get any better than that — think again. El Pollo Loco is launching not one, but two new double loaded nacho items for a limited time only. Perfect for fans of their "crazy chicken," the Double Chicken Nachos will consist of "fresh, hand-salted tortilla chips topped with a mountain of El Pollo Loco's citrus-marinated, fire-grilled chicken, hand-mashed guacamole, signature creamy queso blanco, smashed pinto beans, sour cream, handmade pico de gallo and fried serrano peppers." The famous chicken chain is launching these two new menu items as a part of their "Say No to Naked Chips" ad campaign, which is definitely one of the more creative nacho marketing ideas we've encountered. "No one ever wants to come across a naked chip in their nachos because it's offensive and downright unappetizing," El Pollo Loco's president and CEO Bernard Acoca tells QSR. "At El Pollo Loco, we don't think anyone should ever have to go through the uncomfortable and upsetting experience of unexpectedly coming across a chip in a state of undress, which is why we're loading up our nachos with twice the toppings." We couldn't agree more! Health officials declared Covid-19 a global pandemic and planes stopped flying, bars, gyms and theaters closed, and people retreated to their homes to wait out the disease that had thoroughly disrupted their lives. The Tesla CEO whose recent $44 billion bid to acquire Twitter was accepted is now putting plans in place for a new CEO at the San Francisco company, according to Reuters, which reported that Musk has decided on who he plans to appoint but has yet to publicly release the name. Musk reportedly reiterated to Twitter Chairman Bret Taylor that he isn't confident regarding the company's management — a tone he had struck in his earlier SEC filings — and he also told banks that he plans to create a way to monetize tweets that go viral or include important information and suggested charging a fee when third-party websites quote or embed tweets from verified accounts.The Nasdaq Composite is officially back in a bear market, which happens when an index is down 20% or more from its all-time high. Meanwhile, the S&P 500 is in correction territory — which is a drawdown of at least 10% from the all-time high — while the Dow Jones Industrial Average is just 33 basis points from a correction.(Reuters) -Twitter Chief Executive Parag Agrawal sought to quell employee anger on Friday during a company-wide meeting where employees demanded answers to how managers planned to handle an anticipated mass exodus prompted by Elon Musk. The meeting comes after Musk, the Tesla chief executive who sealed a $44 billion deal to buy the social media company, repeatedly criticized Twitter's content moderation practices and a top executive responsible for setting speech and safety policies. At the internal town hall meeting, which was heard by Reuters, executives said the company would monitor staff attrition daily, but it was too soon to tell how the buyout deal with Musk would affect staff retention.Shares of Nio (NYSE: NIO) surged Friday morning as investors took note of the company's 20F annual report filed today and some good news coming in from China, Nio's domestic market. Investors might know that foreign stocks, particularly Chinese stocks, face the threat of being delisted from U.S. stock exchanges if the underlying companies fail to comply with the audit rules as outlined by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) under the Holding Foreign Companies Accountable Act (HFCAA). Under the law, foreign companies whose audit reports haven't been accessible for the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (PCAOB) to inspect for three years at a stretch will be asked to delist their shares in the U.S. The SEC recently started identifying and naming such companies publicly.Amazon's stock is still seen as one to own from the big-cap tech sector.
